Descripción

On Point - 2nd Edition es una serie de 3 niveles para alumnos principiantes en el idioma alineada a las competencias lingüísticas establecidas por el Marco Común Europeo con un enfoque en el desarrollo de estrategias de lectura (Reading Skills) y desarrollo de pensamiento crítico (Critical Thinking).

On Point - 2nd Edition está organizado en 12 unidades divididas en 2 lecciones.

- Los temas de cada unidad se seleccionaron de acuerdo a su relevancia en el mundo real, usualmente se relacionan con diferentes áreas académicas como:

- ✓ Psicología
- ✓ Sociología
- ✓ Mercadotecnia
- ✓ Tecnologías de la información
- ✓ Etcétera

- Cada unidad indica las habilidades de pensamiento crítico que se desarrollarán
- Los alumnos pueden monitorear su comprensión durante la lectura con las preguntas de guía que rodean el texto principal
- La primera lección de cada unidad plantea un punto de vista del tema de la unidad y la segunda lección plantea otro de vista
- Actividades atractivas para beneficiar el desarrollo de estrategias de lectura y habilidades de pensamiento crítico
- Ejercicios de escritura guiados para cada tema
- Adquisición sistemática de vocabulario académico
- Actividades de discusión (debate)

UNIT OVERVIEW

SUBJECT

Reading topics are chosen for their relevance to students in the real world and are organized by academic subject.

WARM-UP

A short activity gives students an opportunity to predict the content of the passage to follow.

BEFORE YOU READ

Pre-reading exercises activate prior knowledge and relate the topic to students' own lives.

VOCABULARY PREVIEW

Paraphrased sentences from the reading passage present a preview of key academic target words from the Academic Word List (AWL) in context.

BEFORE YOU READ

Rank the statements from 1 (most important to you) to 6 (least important to you). Discuss your rankings with a partner.

- ___ Is honest with me
- ___ Has a background similar to mine
- ___ Shares my interests
- ___ Always helps me when needed
- ___ Can be trusted with a secret
- ___ Has access to things I do not.

VOCABULARY PREVIEW

Read the sentence. Circle the word(s) closest in meaning to the word(s) in bold.

1. People seek friends who have excellent qualities.
a. suggest                      b. trust                      c. look for
2. The way people choose friends is more complex than many might think.
a. complicated                b. serious                   c. surprising
3. It's obvious that people tend to be friends with the people nearest them.
a. silly                          b. clear                        c. common
4. People are more inclined to talk with people who are closer to them.
a. likely                        b. expected                  c. required
5. Residents of the same floor are more likely to become friends.
a. neighbors                   b. communities            c. locals
6. The students were given seats randomly in the classroom.
a. strictly                      b. in pairs                    c. by chance
7. Rhesus macaques are friendlier with monkeys that have a higher social status.
a. position                      b. ability                    c. group
8. The hypothesis states that people are friendlier with people they see as socially significant.
a. argument                   b. theory                    c. topic

READING & CRITICAL-THINKING SKILLS

Reading and critical-thinking skills for each unit are previewed at the start of each lesson.

GUIDING QUESTIONS

Questions in the margins help students monitor their comprehension of the structure and content of the passage.

MAIN READING

An engaging reading educates students on an academic topic of high interest.

[illegible]

FOCUS ON CONTENT

1. Choose the best answer.

According to paragraph 1, what is the Dunbar number?

- The number of close friends that people have
- The number of social-media contacts that people have
- The number of friends that people make in a lifetime
- The number of friends and acquaintances that people have

According to paragraph 2, which is NOT true about the German researchers?

- They began by isolating students together at random.
- They asked about the students' friendships a year later.
- They confirmed that proximity is important in friendships.
- They concluded that students prefer sitting with people they know.

According to paragraph 3, what is stated about homophily?

- It increases as proximity increases.
- There is evidence for it in brain activity.
- It may prevent people from choosing empathy.
- Scientists believe that it runs in families.

According to paragraph 4, why do both macaques and humans cultivate friends?

- To prevent future violent conflict
- To improve their social positions
- To get help against their enemies
- To demonstrate how much they care

According to paragraph 5, the author states all of the following about friendships EXCEPT _____

- that our understanding of them is not complete
- that we usually form them for morally good reasons
- that research fails to show how we maintain them
- that having just one improves your life significantly

2. Choose the best answer.

In line 10, the word combination is closest in meaning to _____

- absence
- example
- try
- note

Which statement best restates the highlighted sentence in the passage?

- People value others who value them.
- Social status doesn't affect friendship.
- Friendships are more important than social status.
- People rank friends higher if they have high social status.

In paragraph 5, why does the author say, "this is a pretty cold and incomplete view of friendship"?

- To explain that the research lacks emotional understanding
- To imply that much more research needs to be done
- To claim that the studies are based on questionable data
- To argue that friendship cannot be studied scientifically

In line 23, the word they refers to _____

- friends
- primates
- psychologists
- macaques

What can be inferred from paragraph 2?

- Jack plays a role in whom we become friends with.
- Neighbors are more likely to become friends than co-workers are.
- Many friendships formed during college do not last long.
- We tend to like people more if we don't see them too often.

- FOCUS ON CONTENT -

Questions of various types help students assess their comprehension of the reading's key details, vocabulary, purpose, and more.

HOW TO USE

MAPPING IDEAS

Read the statements that summarize the passage. Then put the answers in the correct order to complete the graphic organizer.

HOW DO WE CHOOSE OUR FRIENDS?
PARAGRAPH 1	PARAGRAPH 2	PARAGRAPH 3	PARAGRAPH 4	PARAGRAPH 5
1. _____	2. _____	3. _____	4. _____	5. _____

STATEMENTS

- However, this is a cold view of friendship and lacks an understanding of how friendship is maintained.
- In addition, we more easily build friendships with people who are like us.
- Researchers also believe that we look for friends who will help us in a conflict.
- Most of us have a small number of friends, and our reasons for choosing them are surprising.
- Studies have found that we're more likely to become friends with someone in our immediate area.

VOCABULARY REVIEW

Fill in the blanks with the correct word from the box. Change the form if needed.

inclined	randomly	empathize	hypothesis
genuine	complex	obvious	resident

- When the fire alarm went off, the _____ of the apartment building quickly began moving to the exits.
- Salespeople are trained to smile and be helpful, but their friendliness isn't really _____.
- If you have to explain a(n) _____ subject, try to use simple language and clear examples.
- Charles Darwin developed the _____ that species evolve through random changes in genes.
- Jackie's extremely upset about losing her phone, and I can _____ because I lost mine a year ago.
- One _____ solution to your financial problems is to find a better-paying job.
- Few people are _____ to eat outdoors in such chilly, wet weather.
- The students were _____ given a topic to discuss for the next class.

MAPPING IDEAS

Graphic organizers help students gain familiarity with note-taking and common text organizations.

VOCABULARY REVIEW

A fill-in-the-blank exercise reinforces the target AWL and other challenging vocabulary learned in the reading.

CRITICAL-THINKING SKILL

Easy-to-understand lessons introduce the fundamentals of critical thinking, from recognizing and assessing arguments to understanding premises and conclusions.

IDEAS IN ACTION

The reading serves as the takeoff point for discussion and gives students the opportunity to talk about the reading in relation to their own lives.

SHARING YOUR OPINION

A writing prompt gives students the opportunity to use the skills they learned to communicate in written form. Free downloadable worksheets that outline how to respond to the prompt are available for teachers and students.

Understanding Key Terms

Key terms in a passage might have more than one possible meaning that can only be determined from the context. Identifying key terms and understanding their definitions is important when analyzing a reading. This will prevent the reader from being misled or confused.

1 Find the author's definition in the reading and complete the chart.

Key Term	Author's Definition
proximity	Things which are nearby, in our 1. _____, schools, or at work.
similarity	Things we have in common such as age, sex, race, class, physical traits, and 2. _____.
self-interest	The more likely a person is to defend us in a(n) 3. _____.
relatives	Those who share our 4. _____.

2 Read the excerpt. Then check (✓) the sentence that uses the underlined word in the same way.

One famous US study from 1950 looked at residents of a two-story apartment building and found that people who lived on the same floor developed closer friendships than those who lived on different floors.

- To hear the professor better, I had to move closer to the front of the room.
- My best friend moved into the same apartment as mine so we could be closer.
- I'm getting closer with my lab partner, so I'm sure she'll let me borrow today's notes.
- I think the idea that we befriend people who can benefit us is closer to the truth than we like to admit.

IDEAS IN ACTION

Talk about the questions with a partner.

- Why do you think people need friends?
- What do you like most about your closest friends?
- Do you think the information in the reading applies to your friendships? Why or why not?

SHARING YOUR OPINION

Write a paragraph about the conditions necessary for a real, long-lasting friendship.

LESSON 2

A second, carefully leveled reading presents a different perspective on the same topic.

UNIT 5 SOCIOLOGY

Lesson 1: How Do We Choose Our Friends?

Read the prompt Write a paragraph about the conditions necessary for a real, long-lasting friendship.

I. GENERATE IDEAS
Consider the following questions as you think about the conditions for real, long-lasting friendships.

- What are the most important qualities for a friend to have?
- What do you have to do to maintain long-term relationships?
- What do you hope to get out of a friendship?

II. OUTLINE
Complete the outline using ideas from above or other ideas.

Topic sentence When I think about the conditions necessary for a real, long-lasting friendship, I think about _____.

Main Idea 1 (qualities of a friend) _____

Supporting Detail 1: _____

Supporting Detail 2: _____

Main Idea 2 (maintaining friendships) _____

Supporting Detail 1: _____

Supporting Detail 2: _____

Conclusion (what you get out of friendship) _____

III. WRITE
Use the outline to write your paragraph.

GENERATE IDEAS

A scaffolded idea-generation exercise enables students to build on the arguments they developed in the Sharing Your Opinion section of the lesson.

OUTLINE

An outline exercise allows students to create a rough structure for the short writing exercise that follows.

WRITE

A writing exercise gives students freer practice using the vocabulary and ideas they learned in the lesson.

DIFFERENCES THAT DON'T DIVIDE

Practice the skills while reading.

READING SKILL

Setting a Purpose for Reading

Set a goal before reading, such as reading for enjoyment, learning technical information, seeing a new point of view, or learning about a subject.

CRITICAL-THINKING SKILL

Detecting the Author's Purpose

Authors write for many reasons: to inform, persuade, entertain, etc. Knowing the author's purpose helps you think critically about the reading.

Read the title and paragraph 1 and circle your purpose for reading the rest of the article.

- a. For enjoyment
- b. To learn about a subject
- c. To see a new point of view

Read paragraphs 2 and 3 and discuss the author's purpose for writing about opposites.

Tristan and Hannah are as different as two people could be. Tristan loves football, but Hannah hates sports. Hannah loves technology. On the other hand, Tristan doesn't know the first thing about computers. He's from a large family with four brothers and sisters. She's an only child. Prior to meeting Tristan, Hannah was soft-spoken in groups. However, she's now far more outspoken than Tristan. The list of differences between them goes on and on. Yet, somehow, they've been married for fifteen years. With so little in common, how did they manage to make a connection and retain it for so long?

Unlikely relationships like theirs are kind of curious. Most people assume that successful couples have more similarities than differences. That is the conventional wisdom: having a lot in common with a partner should make life easier. After all, interactions will produce less conflict and unhappiness if the partners share a similar point of view.

However, research shows that this might not be the case. A Columbia University study found that some couples are just too much alike for their own good. Over three years, researchers studied 732 men and women and found that couples with the most similar personalities had some of the weakest relationships. In surveys about levels of closeness, commitment, and overall happiness, those couples scored low. Clearly, having a lot in common is no guarantee of a successful marriage. Relationships between very different people have other advantages as well. In his study of couples, Robert Levenson of the University of California showed that different personalities could balance against each other and give couples different ways to see issues and cope with life's difficulties. For instance, someone with an outgoing<sup>1</sup> nature can make up for a partner's shyness. In turn, the outgoing partner can learn to enjoy more time alone.

The causes of attraction between very different people may go even deeper. A study

Read paragraph 4 and underline two adjectives describing people with high testosterone.

Read paragraph 5 and then circle the author's purpose.

- To explain how genetics affects attraction
- To explain why inbreeding is harmful
- To explain why people have a particular smell at Rutgers University revealed a physiological<sup>2</sup> reason for attraction between some 25 opposites. In the study, Dr. Helen Fisher reviewed research on the subject of attraction and learned that levels of certain hormones are linked with specific personality characteristics.

Individuals with high levels of testosterone tend to be competitive and analytical<sup>3</sup>.
They often are attracted to—and attract—their opposites, who are introspective<sup>4</sup> and nurturing<sup>5</sup> individuals with high levels of the hormone estrogen. On the other hand, 30 people with more curious or flexible personality types tend to be attracted to people like themselves. In addition, people who are less anxious and more social are attracted to others of the same personality type. These two groups tend to have average levels of testosterone and estrogen. Ultimately, it seems that opposites do attract among certain personality types, but not all.

35 Genetics<sup>6</sup> may also explain why opposites sometimes attract. A University of New Mexico study suggests that our genes strongly influence our choice of partners. The study found that a woman's unhappiness in a relationship is linked to her partner's genes being too closely matched to her own. This preference may have developed to avoid the dangers that come with inbreeding<sup>7</sup>, which can cause harmful mutations<sup>8</sup> and decreased overall 40 health. In addition, researchers at the Université Paris Diderot compiled evidence that people use smell to sense whether a partner is a match. The study suggests that people can sense differences in MHC (a part of our DNA that plays an essential role in protecting the body from disease) and are more attracted to those whose MHC composition differs from their own. Differing MHC compositions give partners a genetic advantage when 45 having children since their offspring will benefit from a diversified gene pool that can protect them from various diseases.

As with everything in life, there's no one approach to finding love. Like Tristan and Hannah, people with very different upbringings, personalities, and interests can have long-lasting relationships. Their characters, not to mention their hormones and diversified gene pool, 50 may even benefit them in the long run. But in the end, all of this research doesn't really offer much advice for people looking for a perfect match. So don't search exclusively for partners whom you perceive as similar to or different from yourself. Leave your 55 options open and allow yourself to be surprised by what you find.

CRITICAL-THINKING SKILL

Detecting the Author's Purpose

Authors write for many reasons. Common reasons include to entertain, to inform, to explain, to teach, to persuade, and to compare and contrast. Authors can also have more than one purpose.

Read the excerpts. Evaluate them with a partner and answer the questions.

1. Tristan and Hannah are as different as two people could be. Tristan loves football, but Hannah hates sports. Hannah loves technology. On the other hand, Tristan doesn't know the first thing about computers. He's from a large family with four brothers and sisters. She's an only child. Prior to meeting Tristan, Hannah was soft-spoken in groups. However, she's now far more outspoken than Tristan. The list of differences between them goes on and on. Yet, somehow, they've been married for fifteen years.

PURPOSE Circle the purpose. Then underline the sentence that most clearly illustrates the purpose.

- a. To entertain    b. To compare and contrast    c. To persuade    d. To teach

SUMMARIZE Write a short summary of the author's purpose.

2. A study at Rutgers University revealed a psychological reason for attraction between some opposites. In the study, Dr. Helen Fisher reviewed research on the subject of attraction and learned that levels of certain hormones are linked with specific personality characteristics. Individuals with high levels of testosterone tend to be competitive and analytical. They often are attracted to—and attract—their opposites, who are introspective and nurturing individuals with high levels of the hormone estrogen.

PURPOSE Circle the purpose. Then underline the sentence that most clearly illustrates the purpose.

- a. To entertain    b. To compare and contrast    c. To persuade    d. To inform

SUMMARIZE Write a short summary of the author's purpose.

IDEAS IN ACTION

Talk about the questions with a partner.

READING SKILL

Making Connections

You can better understand a reading if you connect it with things you already know. A text-to-text connection relates the passage to another text. A text-to-self connection relates the passage to yourself. A text-to-world connection relates the passage to your knowledge.

CRITICAL-THINKING SKILL

Detecting Arguments

An argument is an attempt to prove that something is true. To find an argument, you must identify the premises and the conclusion that follows.

Read paragraph 1. Have you ever heard advice similar to this? What was it?

Today, many self-help books claim to have the recipe for healthy, wealthy, and wise living; one of their most frequent suggestions is “be yourself.” As Roy T. Bennett’s The Light in the Heart advises, readers should “stop caring about what others think.” As with many clichés<sup>1</sup>, there may be some wisdom behind Bennett’s advice. Certainly, worrying
5 too much about others’ opinions can be stressful and leave us feeling doubtful and depressed, but have writers like Bennett considered the effects of everyone on earth ceasing to care about how they are perceived?

Read paragraph 2 and underline the sentence that describes a social convention being broken.

Emotions such as embarrassment and shame<sup>2</sup> are usually the result of feeling as though we’ve made a mistake in the eyes of others—they don’t feel good, but they serve an 10 important purpose. Imagine you are walking to the supermarket check-out. You are not paying attention and accidentally cut in front of someone in line. Another customer points out your mistake, and you head to the back of the line. How do you feel? Slightly embarrassed, maybe? This is because you have broken a social convention: these are the small, everyday codes and rules that we live by, and they are essential to the smooth
15 running of societies.

Embarrassment and shame prove that humans instinctively<sup>3</sup> care about what people think of them. But why should this be? Cutting in line would be helpful for us, right? Well, while emotions such as embarrassment help maintain a healthy society, many psychologists argue that humans actually developed them for 20 self-preservation<sup>4</sup>. Suppose we deviate from social conventions too often. In that case, we may soon find ourselves alone, without friends, and on the margins of our society—something we instinctively know would not benefit us as individuals.

- <sup>1</sup> cliché n. a saying or remark that is often made and is therefore not original or interesting
<sup>3</sup> instinctively adv. in a way that is not thought about, planned, or developed by training
<sup>4</sup> self-preservation n. behavior based on feelings that warn people to protect themselves

Read paragraph 4. Think of a time when you were embarrassed. What did you learn from the experience?

Read paragraph 5. Describe how you talk to people differently, using specific examples.

Also, without these painfully memorable emotions, we are likely to repeat our mistakes. We can illustrate the personal learning value of embarrassment more clearly with another example. Let's imagine you've now left the supermarket. You didn't remember to bring a bag, so you are struggling to hold many loose apples, oranges, and bananas. Suddenly, you lose your grip, your precious fruit rolls all over the busy street, and you are left desperately chasing after it. If you are feeling embarrassed again, as might be expected, then subsequently, you'll probably remember to bring a shopping bag to get your food home safely.

"Not caring about what others think" suggests that whatever the situation, we should not change or adapt our personalities—instead, as the saying goes, we should "be true to ourselves." In English, the idea of being "two-faced" is extremely negative and is used to describe people who are deceptive<sup>5</sup> or false. Of course, most of us know it's usually not healthy—or even helpful—to lie or consciously<sup>6</sup> pretend to be someone else. However, is it such a bad thing to have more than one "face"? For example, most of us would naturally find ourselves talking very differently to our ten-year-old niece, eighty-year-old grandmother, boss, and best friend. The image we present around others functions as a sign that we are thinking about their expectations, and the adaptations we make are signs of empathy—they show that we have considered others' thoughts, needs, and feelings.

In fact, there is a saying that we have three distinct faces: one for the world, one for our families, and one for ourselves. This seems quite realistic; however, it might also suggest that the last of these faces is the true or "real" one. Can we really say that we are most honestly ourselves when we are alone? Most psychologists argue that we are just as capable of lying to ourselves as we are to others, so perhaps it's other people's opinions of us that "keep us honest."

As with many things in life, the truth probably lies somewhere in between. Worrying too much about how we are seen could be a waste of time—or even dangerous, especially if it is based on shallow judgments<sup>7</sup> about what we wear or how we look. On the other hand, being concerned about how others view us as intelligent, emotional creatures is essential to our well-being and the success of our communities.

When we fall over, the first thing we do is look to see if anyone has noticed. This shows that we cannot choose whether we care about how other people see us—it's an instinctive response.

<sup>7</sup> judgment n. a decision or opinion about someone or something

CRITICAL-THINKING SKILL

Detecting Arguments

An argument is an attempt to prove that something is true. Simple arguments use one or more statements (called premises) to build a conclusion. For example:

- (1) Research shows that people who exercise daily have a lower risk of heart disease.
- (2) I want to reduce my risk of heart disease.
- (3) Therefore, I should exercise daily.

1 Read the excerpt. Evaluate it with a partner and answer the question.

Imagine you are walking to the supermarket check-out. You are not paying attention and accidentally cut in front of someone in line. Another customer points out your mistake, and you head to the back of the line. How do you feel? Slightly embarrassed, maybe? This is because you have broken a social convention: these are the small, everyday codes and rules that we live by, and they are essential to the smooth running of societies.

DETECTING ARGUMENTS

Based on the information in the excerpt, circle the most logical conclusion that could be drawn.

- a. Caring about what others think is important because it makes us unique.
- b. Humans are selfish and don't care what others think, but they want to seem honest.
- c. Embarrassment is necessary to ensure that people follow social conventions.
- d. Rules like going to the back of the line exist to make us feel embarrassed.

2 Write a short summary that includes two or three premises that support the conclusion you circled.

IDEAS IN ACTION

Talk about the questions with a partner.

1. How would you like people to think of you—as clever, beautiful, caring, etc.? Why?
2. What kinds of embarrassing situations can be educational, and which might just be painful?
3. How much should people care about what others think of them?

SHARING YOUR OPINION

Write a paragraph about how you hope that others perceive you and why this might be important to you.

EARLY ADOPTERS FALL INTO A COSTLY TRAP

Practice the skills while reading.

READING SKILL

Making Predictions

Readers can make predictions about a text by looking for clues in the title, the introduction paragraph, and the first and last sentences in a paragraph.

CRITICAL-THINKING SKILL

Detecting Arguments

An argument is an attempt to prove that something is true. To find an argument, you must identify the premises and the conclusion that follows.

Read the title and paragraph 1 and circle what you think the passage will be about.

- a. Early adopters are wasting their money on bad products.
- b. Early adopters make things expensive for everyone.

Read paragraphs 2 and 3 and underline the part that explains how tech companies make money from early adopters.

It's undeniable: being among the first to try out a new piece of technology is cool. When you're the sole member of your social circle with the latest hot gadget<sup>1</sup>, people stare in fascination, seeing you as the holder of powerful and secret knowledge—at least until the next big thing comes along. People tend to underestimate the costs of this temporary coolness, which they end up paying for in more ways than one. So take it from me and don't fall into the early adopter trap by joining the first wave of consumers who invest in the latest uncharted territory in technology. Instead, if you just wait and see, you will save money and avoid being stuck with defective<sup>2</sup>, possibly doomed<sup>3</sup> technology that could even erode your privacy.

- <sup>10</sup> Early adoption is a bad investment, to put it bluntly<sup>4</sup>. First, the earliest versions of products are not only expensive, they are the most expensive that those devices will ever be. Companies presumably charge more to recover the cost of development and production as fast as possible, and they know that there are serious tech-lovers who will pay a great deal to be early adopters. Once the revenues from early adopters' purchases are safely in their hands, they can cut the price and shift to the next marketing phase: selling the product to everyone else. This tactic is why the cost of the original iPhone dropped about $200 only eight months after its release. Prices of gadgets most often fall shortly after release, and they are likely to continue falling. For instance, many new TV models drop significantly in price as little as ten days after hitting the market.
- <sup>15</sup>
- <sup>20</sup> Furthermore, electronics rapidly depreciate<sup>5</sup> because they become obsolete<sup>6</sup> so quickly; the resale price of a used cell phone or laptop can drop by fifty percent within just a few months.

- <sup>1</sup> gadget n. a device; a useful machine
- <sup>2</sup> defective adj. not working properly
- <sup>3</sup> doomed adj. facing certain failure or death
- <sup>4</sup> bluntly adv. briefly and directly
- <sup>5</sup> depreciate v. to become lower in value
- <sup>6</sup> obsolete adj. outdated and no longer in use

Those who are first to leap into a new technology not only risk wasting money, they might also lose time on something that will never catch on with the general public.

- 25 In 2006, two competing options for high-definition video entered the market: HD DVDs and Blu-ray discs. Both seemed promising, and both required special devices called players, costing hundreds of US dollars. Cautious consumers decided to stay neutral, realizing that one or the other would probably end up dominating, and refrained from buying either product. But a few eager consumers took a gamble<sup>7</sup>, and those who
- 30 regrettably bought an HD DVD player quickly found themselves stuck with a virtually worthless machine. In the struggle for high-definition video dominance, Blu-ray was much more technologically advanced than HD DVD and could store up to seven times the amount of information. Sales dropped steadily for HD DVD players, and by early 2008, support for the product was discontinued entirely. Many new products face a similar fate;
- 35 early adopters are then stuck with pricey gadgets that do nothing but sit on their shelves collecting dust<sup>8</sup>.

- Even worse, your new device might have functions that you don't know about and would likely not approve of if you did. In 2013, Amazon Echo introduced the world to a digital assistant named Alexa, who is supposed to become active only when you say
- 40 "her" name. However, voice-recognition technology is still imperfect. These devices often activate without users' permission and record what they hear (though this fact is not acknowledged in the packaging or marketing). The privacy implications remain unclear but are causing tension between developers and consumers. As tech reporter Adam Estes told the Guardian in 2019 in a discussion of digital assistants, "I hate to be dramatic, but I
- 45 don't think we're ever going to feel safe from their data-collection practices."

- Early adopters do something most others are reluctant to do: buy overpriced technology before it has matured for the dubious<sup>9</sup> rewards of being the first and enjoying a short-term increase in status. These trailblazers<sup>10</sup> help the rest of us through their willingness to spend the extra money and work out the problems with a new product.
- 50 So if you know any early adopters, thank them, and then congratulate yourself on not being one of them.

Read paragraph 4 and think of reasons why a product like Alexa could be dangerous.

Read paragraph 5 and then circle the statement the author would agree with most.

- a. There are no benefits to being an early adopter.
- b. Early adopters help companies improve their products.

<sup>7</sup> take a gamble

idiom to take a risk

<sup>8</sup> collect dust

idiom to remain unused

<sup>9</sup> dubious

adj. of doubtful worth or quality

<sup>10</sup> trailblazer

n. someone who does something new that others follow; a pioneer

MAPPING IDEAS

Read the outline and match the best predictions about the contents of the paragraphs to complete the graphic organizer.

EARLY ADOPTERS FALL INTO A COSTLY TRAP
	TOPIC SENTENCES	PREDICTIONS
Paragraph 1	People tend to underestimate the costs of [early adoption's] temporary coolness, which they end up paying for in more ways than one.	1. _____
Paragraph 2	Early adoption is a bad investment, to put it bluntly.	2. _____
Paragraph 3	Those who are first to leap into a new technology not only risk wasting money, they might also lose time on something that will never catch on with the general public.	3. _____
Paragraph 4	Even worse, your new device might have functions that you don't know about and would likely not approve of if you did.	4. _____
Conclusion: Early adopters do something most others are reluctant to do: take on overpriced technology before it has matured, for the dubious rewards of being the first and enjoying a short-term increase in status.

PREDICTIONS
a. The author will describe how companies access personal information without permission. b. The author will describe how buying early can mean wasting money on bad products. c. The author will describe a product that ended up collecting dust on a shelf. d. The author will describe people's reasons for early adoption and its flaws.

Detecting Arguments

An argument is an attempt to prove that something is true. Simple arguments use one or more statements (called premises) to build a conclusion. For example:

- (1) Research shows that people who exercise daily have a lower risk of heart disease.
- (2) I want to reduce my risk of heart disease.
- (3) Therefore, I should exercise daily.

1 Read the excerpt. Evaluate it with a partner and answer the question.

Early adoption is a bad investment, to put it bluntly. [ . . . ] Prices of gadgets most often fall shortly after release, and they are likely to continue falling. For instance, many new TV models drop significantly in price as little as ten days after hitting the market. Furthermore, electronics rapidly depreciate because they become obsolete so quickly; the resale price of a used cell phone or laptop can drop by fifty percent within just a few months.

DETECTING ARGUMENTS

Based on the information in the excerpt, circle the most logical conclusion that could be drawn.

- a. The value of electronic devices depreciates when they're not popular.
- b. Early adopters are more likely to lose money by selling obsolete devices.
- c. It makes sense to wait before buying a "new" technological device.
- d. Shoppers refuse to buy new products because they'll soon be obsolete.

2 Write a short summary that includes two or three premises that support the conclusion you circled.

---

IDEAS IN ACTION

Talk about the questions with a partner.

1. How are early adopters viewed in your circle of friends?
2. Have you ever purchased a new product when it was first released? Describe the experience.
3. Describe an expensive and trendy product you want. Why do you want it so badly?

SHARING YOUR OPINION

Write a paragraph about whether you think being an early adopter is worth it or not. Give multiple reasons.

ON POINT

READING AND
CRITICAL-THINKING
SKILLS

On Point is a three-volume series that teaches upper-intermediate and advanced learners of English to analyze, critically evaluate, and intelligently respond to texts. Each unit centers on a high-interest topic and guides learners through engaging discussions and activities.

The series builds learners' cross-disciplinary academic vocabulary. Focus vocabulary for each reading passage is chosen from the Academic Word List (AWL). Created by Averil Coxhead, this list of 570 words is commonly used in written academic English across various fields.

THE SECOND EDITION INCLUDES:

- ❏ New and updated readings on important current topics from a variety of academic subjects
- ❏ Reading comprehension exercises designed to hone comprehension skills
- ❏ Preview and review exercises to reinforce the Academic Word List (AWL) vocabulary words encountered in the readings
- ❏ Activities to hone reading comprehension skills and encourage critical thinking
- ❏ Audio recordings of all reading passages to reinforce correct pronunciation and reading fluency
- ❏ Interactive application for supplemental learning
- ❏ Downloadable materials, including answer keys, words lists, and tests, can be found at www.compasspub.com/OnPoint2e1
